Private Funeral Planned Wednesday at 10

BULLETIN

A verdict of suicide in the death of Mrs. Anna K. Hall was announced at 2: p. m. today by Dr. C. E. Bowers, coroner.

Mrs. Anna Kay Hall, 56, of 220 Watt-st., widow of the late Charles Hall, grocery proprietor, was found dead in the garage at the rear of her residence Sunday at 11 p. m.

Death was caused by asphyxiation from monoxide gas, Coroner C. E. Bowers, reported, but no verdict has been rendered. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said all evidence pointed to suicide.

Mrs. Hall's body was found by Deputy Bob Armstrong when he entered the garage to unlock the rear door and put his car away. The deputy and Mrs. Armstrong live in the apartment over Mrs. Hall's home.

Found on Garage Floor

The body was found on the garage floor at the rear of her automobile. Her face was in line with the exhaust pipe and her head was resting on a coat and an old hat was found nearby. She was holding to a fender with one hand. Her face was blackened by fumes from the car.

The ignition switch was turned on, officers reported, but the motor was not running. The gasoline tank was not empty but the choke on the car was pulled out.

Dr. Bowers believed Mrs. Hall's death occurred Sunday morning. The Armstrongs reported they heard Mrs. Hall downstairs about 10 p. m. Saturday but Mr. Armstrong did not put his car in the garage that night.

Found About 11 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong had left the sheriff's residence shortly before 11 p. m. for their home and drove to the garage. Mrs. Armstrong waited in the car while her husband went around the garage to open the door. Ordinarily the rear door is left unlocked, they said. When Mr. Armstrong turned on the lights he saw the body. There is no partition between the garages. He immediately notified city police, the sheriff, and the coroner. The Rinehart ambulance removed the body.

Little stock was taken by officers of some notes found in the house. The notes were made on a sheet and concerned payment of coal and repair bills and officers believed they were memorandums Mrs. Hall had made about her business. The memorandums were directed to no one and were not signed.

Mrs. Hall was born Jan. 16, 1879 near Loveland, O., the daughter of William L. Kay and Elizabeth Simpson. She was married to Charles Hall Jan. 19, 1899, and came to Circleville as a bride. Mr. Hall was in the grocery business here for 25 years until his death 11 years ago.

Mrs. Hall is survived by four brothers, Robert and William Kay of Murdock, near Loveland; Harry Kay, Cincinnati, and Alfred Kay, Springfield, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Davis of Loveland, and Miss Eliza Kay of Lakeside, O., a former teacher in the Cincinnati schools.

Funeral Is Wednesday

Private funeral services will be held in the residence Wednesday at 10 a. m. and burial will be at Hopkinsville in Warren-co. in charge of C. E. Hill of Williamsport. Rev. Emil S. Toensmeier will officiate. Friends are asked to call at the home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Hall was a member of the Presbyterian church and the Eastern Star.

By FLOYD GIBBONS

ROME, Sept. 16.—Hello, Everybody:

I have delayed writing this report for one week. For seven days I have hunted high and low for some slight ray of hope for peace in Europe. I have found none.

War, and war alone, will satisfy the Italian nation.

This decision has been made. The die is cast. There is no turning back.

Nothing will prevent the armies of Italy from invading Ethiopia, unless it be the primitive warriors of the African king of kings.

Italy has called an end to the days of parley, argument, discussion and consultation.

Italy is determined she is not going to be talked out of this war. Even by the League of Nations, by Great Britain, or by the unenforceable recommendations of peace advanced by America.

Only the armed intervention of other powers and possibly the outbreak of a general European war with worldwide repercussions, can possibly prevent Italy from attempting to realize her aims.

Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Williams of Portsmouth are in Berger hospital with serious injuries resulting from an auto-truck collision on Route 23 three miles north of the city Sunday morning.

Mrs. Williams, 64, the driver, suffered a severely crushed face, the loss of her right eye, cuts and bruises. Mrs. Williams remained conscious though painfully hurt.

Mr. Williams, 60, an employee of the N. & W. railroad, sustained a fractured pelvis, and deep cuts about the face and head.

DAVEY COMES OUT FOR SOLDIER BONUS

AKRON Sept. 16.—Gov. Martin L. Davey was on record again today in favor of immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

He sounded his bonus views at the dedication of a new American Legion home at suburban Cuyahoga Falls yesterday. He called upon the nation to stand for preparedness against "the rising clouds of war abroad."

"We want these soldiers to feel that they have had justice," he said. "If I were in congress today I should vote to pay that bonus in full. When they are spending millions and millions every day. What a two billions more?"

He called for support of the $20,000,000 state institutional building program. This, he said, would put many unemployed to work and relieve crowding in the state institutions.

PRESIDENT HEARS EUROPEAN DETAILS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The extreme gravity of the European situation was reflected acutely here today at the summer White House.

Norman H. Davis, who has been America's ambassador at large for the past two years and a half, was scheduled to call on President Roosevelt this afternoon. He was to be accompanied by Mrs. Davis and the engagement was listed as "tea," but it was regarded certain that the ominous war cloud hanging over the eastern hemisphere would be explored fully by the President and Davis.

DeVALERA PLEADS FOR QUARREL END

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—While League of Nations leaders predicted Italy's withdrawal by Thursday, the entire Polish delegation to the league assembly walked out in anger today as a serious rift developed between Poland and Soviet Russia, overshadowing an impassioned appeal for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute before blood is shed by President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State.

The Polish delegation left the assembly during a speech by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, near the close of the league assembly's general discussion.

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—With

League of Nations leaders pessimistically forecasting Italy's withdrawal by Thursday, Eamonn De Valera, head of the Irish free state, today delivered an impassioned appeal to the league assembly urging the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel be settled before blood is shed rather than after.

Plainly referring to Italy and

Ethiopia but not mentioning names, De Valera said:

"Must we wait until the wronged has risen up in armed revolt before we grant him redress to which we know he is entitled?"

"Why if the problems are economic and it is fear of withholding essential raw materials that is causing alarm—why cannot these questions and their relation to colonial possessions be discussed now? or will our conservatism consent and deem the time ripe only when the slaughter has begun?"

The report of the league's committee of five still was in the sub-committee stage, and was not expected to reach individual members of the council until tomorrow. Then it will go to the Italians and Ethiopians, and the Italian council of ministers, meeting under Premier Mussolini, will have the decisive word Wednesday.

This word, in view of De Valera's statement of Saturday saying there could be no compromises in the Ethiopian affair, was expected to be notice of Italy's withdrawal from the League.

HITLER AGAIN ATTACKS JEWS

Holds Them Even Lower Than "Aryans"; Schacht Must Express His Stand

NUEREMBERG, Germany,

Sept. 16.—The Jews of Germany henceforth will be regarded by the Reich government as a small "national minority," stripped of citizenship and having less property and commercial rights than "Aryans," it was learned today as Chancellor Adolf Hitler closed the Nazi party's congress with an impressive war show.

Nazi radicals celebrated a sweeping victory of the party over the state, toasting the event with many beer songs.

Furthermore, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economics minister who has led the moderate opposition to the extreme Nazi campaigns, will be summoned before party leaders at a closed session tomorrow to give an accounting of his job, it was learned. This may foreshadow a new onslaught against him.

Discussing significance of new laws against the Jews with party leaders at his hotel, Hitler declared such laws provide the sole possibility of reaching a tolerable relationship with the Jews of Germany.

McADOO AND BRIDE TRAVELING TO WEST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and his 26-year-old bride, the former Doris Cross, quietly slipped from their secret honeymoon retreat today and boarded a Central air line plane for Pittsburgh for the first leg of their trip to California.

The airplane will arrive at Pittsburgh at 10 a. m. and there the newlyweds will transfer to a TWA airplane for the remainder of the trip.

The couple were married Saturday at the home of the Senator's son-in-law in nearby Maryland.

Threats heard to lynch youth in Susanville, Calif., Sept. 16.—Threats of lynching again rumbled in northern California today under heavy guard in Lanes-co jail here is a 23-year-old youth who identified himself as Alvin Thomas Tully and confessed to charges of attacking and brutally beating Juanita Shepard, 16-year-old girl of a prominent Westwood family, according to District Attorney Ben Quier.

Westwood is a lumber mill town. Lumberjacks and friends of the girl's family congregated in groups here today near the county jail. Sheriff Olin Johnson assigned extra deputies to guard the jail throughout the night.

Tully will be taken to justice court today under heavy guard. District Attorney Currier declared the youth said he would enter a plea of guilty.

HERALD MOVES IN TWO WEEKS

The Herald is preparing for moving day.

On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28 and 29, The Herald plant will be moved from its eight-year-old home, at 124 W. Main-st., to the Brehmer building, 210 N. Court-st.

A long lease has been taken on the Brehmer building formerly used as a garage and automobile showroom. When remodeled and renovated, it will be one of the finest small-city newspaper plants in Ohio.

The entire operation will be confined to one floor. There will be convenient and spacious business and editorial offices, with composing and press departments designed by experts to provide a maximum of efficiency.

It's a long and precarious job, moving a newspaper, and The Herald will go to press early on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 28, in order to have everything in running order in the new plant in time for the issue of Monday, Sept. 30.

A formal opening, to which the general public will be invited, will be held sometime in October.

Shock Proves Fatal To Clarksburg Woman

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the residence for Mrs. Ella Smith, aged 70, wife of Minus Smith of Clarksburg. Rev. Ray Tucker will officiate with interment in Brown's chapel cemetery by C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Smith died Saturday afternoon in White Cross hospital, Columbus, of shock after amputation of her right leg forced by a diabetic condition.

Besides her husband she leaves the following children: Ray of Chillicothe, Clara Roseboom of Chillicothe, Russell of California, Emma Shaw of Chillicothe, Howard of Cleveland, and Martha at home. A step-daughter, Mrs. Ora Gibson of Marysville, and a brother, Joseph Speakman, also survive.

She was born July 14, 1855, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Speakman.

COUNTY SENDS CITY NEEDY TO SAFETY CHIEF

Only Six Apply for Aid as Uncle Sam Turns Over 337 Families

NO FUNDS IN CITY

Others to be Sent to Trustees for Aid.

Although the county commissioners today took over the relief clients from the government, the board had but a small taste of the situation.

Six city clients who appealed for aid were directed to L. T. Shaner, city safety director, by the board. At noon Mr. Shaner announced they had not appealed to him and when they did he would have to inform them the city has no relief funds at the present time and hasn't had for six months.

Divide Them First

The move of the commissioners on these six cases indicates they plan to send the clients to city officials and township trustees first for care. If these divisions are without funds the cases will be warranted back to the board.

Burr Rader, chairman of the board, said he had absolutely nothing to say about the relief situation and the board has no definite plans mapped out to handle relief.

Ralph May, a member of the board, was absent Monday as he is on a vacation trip in Texas. Commissioner C. E. Wright said all cases would be carefully investigated before relief orders were issued.

337 Cases Filled

A total of 337 cases were turned over to the commissioners Monday by O. S. Coffey, federal relief director.

All Ohio counties will be in charge of their relief by Nov. 1, Monday by Charles Stillman, federal relief administrator of Ohio.

Other Ohio counties taking over today in addition to Pickaway-co were: Auglaize, Brown, Carroll, Champaign, Fulton, Harrison, Madison, Putnam and Wayne.

Ten more counties will be added to the list on Oct. 1. They include: Darke, Defiance, Fairfield, Henry, Muskingum, Seneca, Tuscarawas, Williams, Mercer and Knox.

Follow Carey Act

Where no funds are available in these counties for relief purposes, it was expected the county commissioners would take steps to obtain funds under the Carey act which provided for bond retirement upon maturity for money derived from the special utility tax.

NEW HOLLAND MARSHAL HURT

Charles Hill, 55, in Hospital With Head Injuries After Saturday Brawl

Marshal Charles Hill, 55, of New Holland, is in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, with a probable fracture of the skull, and a father and son are held in the county jail as the result of an alley fight in the village Saturday night.

The marshal was knocked to the pavement and his head severely injured when he attempted to quiet the celebrants. Hospital physicians reported his condition as "fair."

Watsons Jailed

Roy Watson, 47, of New Holland and his son, Charles, 20, were arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver for investigation. The elder Watson received three cuts on the head in the affray and had to be treated by Dr. Charles Davis, New Holland before being brought to the county jail.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff reported about six persons were involved in the fight and more arrests are expected in his investigation today. The reports received by the sheriff were that several residents who had been drinking started the fight in the alley at the rear of Mossburger's restaurant and several beer bottles were used as weapons. The officers reported Mr. Hill was struck with a fist by one of the celebrants.

Helped By Officers

Special Policemen Thomas Doyle and Late Hosler assisted Sheriff Radcliff in breaking up the affair.

Mr. Hill was removed to Mt. Carmel hospital in the Klover ambulance of Washington C. H.

AKRON Sept. 16.—Gov. Martin L. Davey was on record again today in favor of immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

He sounded his bonus views at the dedication of a new American Legion home at suburban Cuyahoga Falls yesterday. He called upon the nation to stand for preparedness against "the rising cloud of war abroad."

"We want these soldiers to feel that they have had justice," he said. "If I were in congress today I should vote to pay that bonus in full. When they are spending millions and millions every day. What's two billions more?"

He called for support of the $20,000,000 state institutional building program. This, he said, would put many unemployed to work and relieve crowding in the state institutions.

Threats Heard

THREATS HEARD
TO LYNCH YOUTH

SUSANVILLE, Calif., Sept. 16.—Threats of lynching again rumbled in northern California today. Under heavy guard in Lassen-co jail here is a 23-year-old youth who identified himself as Alton Thomas Tully and confessed to charges of attacking and brutally beating Juanita Shepard, 16-year old girl of a prominent Westwood family, according to District Attorney Ben Quier.

Westwood is a lumber mill town. Lumberjacks and friends of the girl's family congregated in groups here today near the county jail. Sheriff Olin Johnson assigned extra deputies to guard the jail throughout the night.

Tully will be taken to justice court today under heavy guard. District Attorney Quier declared the youth said he would enter a plea of guilty.

DeVALERA PLEADS FOR QUARREL END

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—While League of Nations leaders predicted Italy's withdrawal by Thursday, the entire Polish delegation to the league assembly walked out in anger today as a serious rift developed between Poland and Soviet Russia, overshadowing an impassioned appeal for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute before blood is shed by President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State.

The Polish delegation left the assembly during a speech by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, near the close of the league assembly's general discussion.

Plainly referring to Italy and

Ethiopia but not mentioning names, De Valera said:

"Must we wait until the wronged has risen up in armed revolt before we grant him redress to which we know he is entitled?"

"Why, if the problems are economic and it is fear of withholding essential raw materials that is causing alarm—why cannot these questions and their relation to colonial possessions be discussed now? or will our conservatism... consent and deem the time ripe only when the slaughter has begun?"

The report of the league's committee of five still was in the sub-committee stage, and was not expected to reach individual members of the council until tomorrow. Then it will go to the Italians and Ethiopians, and the Italian council of ministers, meeting under Premier Mussolini, will have the decisive word Wednesday.

This word, in view of Il Duce's brilliant statement of Saturday saying there could be no compromises in the Ethiopian affair, was expected to be notice of Italy's withdrawal from the League.

HITLER AGAIN ATTACKS JEWS

Holds Them Even Lower Than "Aryans"; Schacht Must Express His Stand

NUEREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 16.—The Jews of Germany henceforth will be regarded by the Reich government as a small "national minority," stripped of citizenship and having less property and commercial rights than "Aryans," it was learned today as Chancellor Adolf Hitler closed the Nazi party's congress with an impressive war show.

Nazi radicals celebrated a sweeping victory of the party over the state, toasting the event with many beer songs.

Furthermore, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economics minister who has led the moderate opposition to the extreme Nazi campaigns, will be summoned before party leaders at a closed session tomorrow to give an accounting of his job, it was learned. This may foreshadow a new onslaught against him.

Discussing significance of new laws against the Jews with party leaders at his hotel, Hitler declared such laws provide the sole possibility of reaching a tolerable relationship with the Jews of Germany.

McADOO AND BRIDE TRAVELING TO WEST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and his 26-year-old bride, the former Doris Cross, quietly slipped from their secret honeymoon retreat today and boarded a Central air line plane for Pittsburgh for the first leg of their trip to California.

The airplane will arrive at Pittsburgh at 10 a. m. and there the newlyweds will transfer to a TWA airplane for the remainder of the trip.

The couple were married Saturday at the home of the senator's son-in-law in nearby Maryland.

HERALD MOVES IN TWO WEEKS

Brehmer Building Being Remodelled Into Newspaper Plant

The Herald is preparing for moving day.

On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28 and 29, The Herald plant will be moved from its eight-year-old home, at 124 W. Main-st., to the Brehmer building, 210 N. Court-st.

A long lease has been taken on the Brehmer building formerly used as a garage and automobile salesroom. When remodelled and renovated, it will be one of the finest small-city newspaper plants in Ohio.

The entire operation will be confined to one floor. There will be convenient and spacious business and editorial offices, with composing and press departments designed by experts to provide a maximum of efficiency.

It's a long and precarious job, moving a newspaper, and The Herald will go to press early on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 28, in order to have everything in running order in the new plant in time for the issue of Monday, Sept. 30.

A formal opening, to which the general public will be invited, will be held sometime in October.

Shock Proves Fatal To Clarksburg Woman

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the residence for Mrs. Ella Smith, aged 70, wife of Minus Smith of Clarksburg. Rev. Ray Tucker will officiate with interment in Brown's chapel cemetery by C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Smith died Saturday afternoon in White Cross hospital, Columbus, of shock after amputation of her right leg forced by a diabetic condition.

Besides her husband she leaves the following children: Ray of Chillicothe, Clara Roseboom of Chillicothe, Russell of California, Emma Shaw of Chillicothe, Howard of Cleveland, and Martha at home. A step-daughter, Mrs. Ora Nelson of Marysville, and a brother, Joseph Speakman, also survive.

She was born July 14, 1875, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Speakman.

COUNTY SENDS CITY NEEDY TO SAFETY CHIEF

Only Six Apply for Aid
as Uncle Sam Turns
Over 337 Families

NO FUNDS IN CITY

Others to be Sent to Trustees for Aid.

Although the county commissioners today took over the relief clients from the government, the board had but a small taste of the situation.

Six city clients who appealed for aid were directed to L. T. Shaner, city safety director, by the board. At noon Mr. Shaner announced they had not appealed to him and when they did he would have to inform them the city has no relief funds at the present time and hasn't had for six months.

Divide Them First

The move of the commissioners on these six cases indicates they plan to send the clients to city officials and township trustees first for care. If these subdivisions are without funds the cases will be warranted back to the board.

Burr Rader, chairman of the board, said he had absolutely nothing to say about the relief situation and the board has no definite plans mapped out to handle relief. Ralph May, a member of the board, was absent Monday as he is on a vacation trip in Texas. Commissioner C. E. Wright said all cases would be carefully investigated before relief orders were issued.

337 Cases Filed

A total of 337 cases were turned over to the commissioners Monday by O. S. Coffey, federal relief director.

All Ohio counties will be in charge of their relief by Nov. 1, Monday by Charles Stillman, federal relief administrator of Ohio.

Other Ohio counties taking over today in addition to Pickaway-co were: Auglaize, Brown, Carroll, Champaign, Fulton, Harrison, Madison, Putnam and Wayne.

Ten more counties will be added to the list on Oct. 1. They include: Darke, Defiance, Fairfield, Henry, Muskingum, Seneca, Tuscarawas, Williams, Mercer and Knox.

Follow Carey Act

Where no funds are available in these counties for relief purposes, it was expected the county commissioners would take steps to obtain funds under the Carey act which provided for bond retirement upon maturity for money derived from the special utility tax.

STRIKE ENDS, SAVES QUARTER MILLION

DEFIANCE, Sept. 16.—Strike settlement and resumption of production at the Defiance Pressed Steel Co. averted loss of automobile hot water heaters orders aggregating $270,000, Superintendent H. D. Hadley revealed today.

5 MEN DROWN

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Five men battling high seas in lower New York bay were drowned today when their tiny yawl capsized and sank while they were attempting to reach Romer shoal light-house, three miles north of Sandy Hook, with supplies from the light-house tender tulip.

Truce Reached in Ohio Strike

COSHOCTON, Sept. 16.—A truce was reached today in the Novelty Advertising Company strike as peaceful picketing continued at the plant.

Terms of the truce were announced by Robert McCormick, federation of labor organizer, and Warner H. Pomerene, company attorney, following a conference. McCormick said the strikers agreed to permit the office force free access to the plant on condition that no effort would be made to finish work underway inside or to ship goods.

The strikers also promised to cease molesting company employees willing to return to work, it was stated. Three employees have been beaten during the labor difficulties.

Pomerene assured McCormick there would be no move to resume operations while the company awaited the decision of the national labor relations board. Ralph (Continued on Page Six)

NEW HOLLAND MARSHAL HURT

Charles Hill, 55, in Hospital
With Head Injuries After Saturday Brawl

Marshal Charles Hill, 55, of New Holland, is in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, with a probable fracture of the skull, and a father and son are held in the county jail as the result of an alley fight in the village Saturday night.

The marshal was knocked to the pavement and his head severely injured when he attempted to quiet the celebrants. Hospital physicians reported his condition as "fair."

Watsons Jailed

Roy Watson, 47, of New Holland and his son, Charles, 20, were arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver for investigation. The elder Watson received three cuts on the head in the affray and had to be treated by Dr. Charles Davis, New Holland before being brought to the county jail.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff reported about six persons were involved in the fight and more arrests are expected in his investigation today. The reports received by the sheriff were that several residents who had been drinking started the fight in the alley at the rear of Mossbarger's restaurant and several beer bottles were used as weapons. The officers reported Mr. Hill was struck with a fist by one of the celebrants.

Helped By Officers

Special Policemen Thomas Doyle and Lefe Hosler assisted Sheriff Radcliff in breaking up the affair.

Mr. Hill was removed to Mt. Carmel hospital in the Kiever ambulance of Washington C. H.

AMANDA MAN, 28, VICTIM OF CRASH

BULLETIN

Bert Smith, 28, of Amanda, R. F. D., was killed in an auto accident north of Ashville Monday afternoon, according to a report received from Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who left to investigate the collision.

Meager reports of the accident states a car driven by Robert Eccard, Ashville, collided with an auto in which Smith was riding at an intersection north of the city.

CONTESTED DIVORCE ACTION TO COST BIG SUM FOR WITNESSES

Here's a divorce case that is going to cost someone a pretty penny!

Judge J. W. Adkins, Monday morning, started hearing the contested action of Daisy Sweeney against George Sweeney. Both are from Ross-co and the action was transferred here from Judge Wilbur McKenzie's court on a change of venue.

At 10 a. m. 28 witnesses had filed, all of them reporting mileage from 80 to 100 miles for the round trip. More witnesses are to report and since each receives five cents per mile the loser of the case will be paying for a long while. Court attorneys' fees and other court costs and the expense will be a large one.

LIFE OF VALUE TO CITY ENDS; PIONEER'S SON

Active Civic Leader, Republican "Friend of Presidents" is Called.

CENTENNIAL HEAD

Is Survived by Wife and Three Daughters.

Charles E. Groce, aged 84, Circleville's most honored citizen, succumbed at 12:30 p. m. Monday at his home, 219 S. Court-st.

Infirmities of old age caused his demise.

In the death of Colonel Groce, Circleville sustains an irreparable loss.

Born and reared here, his life has been filled with good deeds calculated to advance the best interests of his loved city.

Colonel Groce was born July 26, 1851, the fourth child and only son of John A. and Ellen Graham Groce. He was educated in the public schools, and later attended the Western Military Institute at Dayton, Ohio. Upon leaving, he was the ranking military officer of the school. He returned to Circleville to work with his father, and in 1872 acquired an interest in the pork business under the firm name of John Groce and Son. His father retired in 1891, and Mr. Groce continued the business under the old name until the sale of the property about eight years ago.

In Grain Business

In February, 1898 he leased the elevator at Elmwood and started in the grain business. Later he rented the elevator at Bells' siding, and purchased one at Ashville, and afterwards two at New Holland and one at Atlanta. Subsequently disposing of the others, at the time of his death, he was operating the New Holland and Atlanta houses. He was active in the management of his farms in Wayne and Perry-twp., and served a term as president of the Corn Growers Association of Ohio, as well as several terms as president of the Ohio Grain Dealers association.

He was always a loyal worker in the Republican party, and saw service on the staffs of Governors Charles Foster and Joseph Benson Foraker. For six years he served on the State Board of Public Works, being president for several years, and has been a delegate a number of times to the National Republican convention. He was chairman of the Republican Central Committee for many years, and also a member of the State central and executive committees.

Friend of Presidents

After becoming a voter he attended all state and national conventions of his party, with the exception of the 1932 convention in Chicago. He was a close personal friend of President Harding and had many happy recollections of friendships with Presidents McKinley and Taft, United States Senators Foraker, Hanna, Burton, Willis and Fess, Speaker Nicholas Longworth and many governors of Ohio.

Mr. Groce was instrumental in the establishment of the first telephone service here in 1879, by securing in advance enough subscribers to insure its installation.

One of the outstanding events of his life was the celebration of Centennial week in Circleville in 1910, for which, as chairman of the committee, he worked tirelessly to make it the great success it was.

Headed Guards

As a young man, Mr. Groce was captain of the Circleville Guards, and with his men saw active service during minor troubles in the state. During the World War he served as chairman of the Liberty Loan committee, and was, in a great measure, responsible for the over-subscription here of every bond issue. As various contingents of Pickaway-co boys left for service in the army, Colonel Groce spoke words of farewell and cheer to them; and, upon their return, was chairman of the Citizens Committee that welcomed them home with a big celebration.

A life-long member of the Presbyterian church, he was for thirty years a member of the board of trustees, and had served (Continued on Page Six)

ICKES-HOPKINS FEUD

MAYBE the president's suavity, as on other occasions, will be sufficient to sweeten the PWA and WPA acerbities of the Ickes-Hopkins row. In a way it's an amusing spectacle, suggestive of school-boy appeal to teacher, this departure of the irate secretary of the interior for Hyde Park with Hopkins on his heels.

That two individuals of such opposing temperaments would clash where both had equal authority is not surprising. Ickes is the phlegmatic, not-to-be-hurried type, Hopkins is nervous, emotional, active. They simply haven't hitched. The last straw to further pretense of harmony was swept aside when Hopkins, rejecting nearly 2,000 proposed WPA projects because the material cost was too high, intimated his decision was final.

The genesis of the row goes back to that failure of the president and his advisers to do a simple problem in mapping out the work relief program. Useful public projects, particularly those self liquidating, were to have preference and work on them was to be provided for all the 3,500,000 idle employables on relief. It's an old story now, the quick reversal of policy when the administration awakened to the fact that materials would absorb the greater part of the $4,000,000,000 fund.

Then it was the WPA was created and Hopkins sent scurrying to revive a sort of CWA program with less emphasis on the usefulness and self-liquidating factors. It had to be done to keep the president's promise to the 3,500,000. Whether the latter will benefit as much as they would had the original plan been adhered to is open to question—Harold apparently shares the doubt on that score. Certainly the country will lose. But Hopkins has a job to do and, as he remarked when asked about Ickes's outbreak, he "is going to do it" willy nilly. That puts it straight up to the president.

Whatever the settlement reached at Hyde Park it is to be hoped it will include some step to end the division of authority. Until that is done there will continue to be friction and confusion.

"NOTHING TO HIDE"

PUBLIC and private martinet who think it is smart, and, in some unknown way, wise, to dodge the press when certain happenings arouse general interest should tear a page from the book of S. Ira Cooper, general manager of the steamship company that owns the grounded liner Dixie.

Far from evading reporters, Mr. Cooper took them into his confidence, presenting all available information with the utmost candor.

When someone remarked that this technique was unusual, he said: "We do not need attorneys to advise us what to give out to the public, as we have nothing to hide."

Such frankness and honesty may well be pondered by every politician, manager, superintendent and executive who occasionally faces the necessity of helping to sketch the daily pitcher of things as they are.

Italy has declared Ethiopia an outlaw. And is rapidly organizing a posse to capture her.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

CHAPTER 45

AFTER HE had all the information the Vrooman boy could give, Blair made out his personal check to his father and received the fifth diamond.

Father and son left the docks, and Blair wandered about alone. He inquired at all the offices whether a girl of Janet's description had been seen. They apparently had not. No one had sailed under the name of Janet Lord from any of the lines. Maurice Boisevain was equally unknown. Twenty-five suits carrying passengers had left since last Friday, some for the coast route, a few for the Orient and Australia, and the regular daily boats to Seattle.

Blair gave it up, finally, no wiser than when he had come, except for the possession of another diamond.

Upon reaching the hotel he phoned Boisevain, but there were no more answers there to his "B. L." advertisements.

He inquired at his own hotel for Miss Lord, but no one, apparently had seen a girl answering her description.

It seemed useless to him, now, to return to Boisevain when he knew Janet had been in Vancouver. At least the diamond Sammy Vrooman had found indicated the trail led there. This, he believed, was his only clue and although a discouragingly slender one, he determined to follow it through.

He made a personal survey of all the automobile rental agencies. Janet had said in her note that she was going away in a car... that it was waiting even as she wrote to Nita. The car might possibly have come from Vancouver. But all efforts to trace the car ended in failure.

It seemed incredible to him that the two had dropped so completely from sight, considering that Nita had said that Maurice, if he were to be seen, was so terrible anyone would remember him. Blair tried to picture him, but could not. Nita had not given him even a hint of the man's appearance.

Time was passing so rapidly, yet he seemed to be getting nowhere. With each day that passed, Janet was getting farther and farther away from him, he felt.

After visiting the car agencies, he drove aimlessly back to the hotel, wondering what he should do next. Hire a detective to manage the thing for him? That might be best, after all... although he had leisure, he could handle the matter well enough himself if only he could get some clue to work on.

A maid was cleaning his room when he returned to the hotel. He dropped into an easy chair, more discouraged than exhausted.

"Funny things you find in hotel rooms," the maid, who proved to be a garrulous person, said, suddenly. She was pounding up his pillows with their fresh slips on. "Funny things. Once I found a pearl ring-lyn on the wash bowl of a room on my floor. An' nobody ever claimed it, would you believe? Then once last year, I found a sapphire bracelet under a pillow. But the woman came back after it. She gave me $5 for findin' it. Always findin' things, I am. They think I'm lucky. I got a lucky floor, here. But I got good eyes. Funny, the things you find around a hotel."

"Yes?" Blair said, idly. The talkative woman annoyed him. He wanted to concentrate, to think.

"An' just this mornin' I found a stone under the rug in the big suite down the hall. I was vacuumin' and my vacuum hit a bump—an' when I lifted the corner of the rug, what a dye think I found? Maabe it's a diamond. You oughter know, sir."

The maid fished in her pocket and pulled out a glittering object and handed it to Blair.

Blair glanced dully at it. He had not half heard what the woman said. He suddenly sat up with a start.

"Where did you find this?" he demanded, excitedly. The stone was exactly like the ones he already had.

"Under the rug in 708-10, when I was vacuumin', I told you, sir. I just been wonderin' whether it was a real diamond or just a bit of glass. Maabe you could tell me, sir."

"I've been looking for it. See it just matches my others." He drew out his other five gems.

"Well, now, ain't that queer? Well, if it's yours you can have it." She handed him the diamond.

"I'm offering a reward... I've been using all in all the papers. Here's $50 for your trouble."

The maid's face was a mixture of joy and consternation.

"Oh, sir, that's too much... and I ain't even reported it at the desk yet... just found it this mornin'."

"Take it, and say nothing about finding it. Now, I want to ask you some questions."

Reluctantly the woman sat down, holding the $50 bill tightly in her hand.

"Can you take me to the room where you found this?"

"A man and his wife have it, now."

"When did they come?"

"I don't know exactly, sir... but I think they've been there for several days. It was empty a few days before that."

"Who occupied it before?"

"I'm sure I don't know... who ever did, didn't want the suite touched. For I had orders from the housekeeper not to go in."

"You're sure you didn't see the people who occupied the room... I mean the ones before the couple now in there?"

"I didn't see 'em, sir."

"All right, that's all I want to know."

Blair hurried from the room to see the desk clerk. The present occupants of the suite were an elderly man and his wife from Winnipeg. They had been there three days. Before that, the suite had been empty for several days. It had been occupied last night, last Thursday, and Friday, by a lady, a Miss Marie Boisevain from Seattle.

"What did the girl look like?"

The clerk remembered nothing about her, except that she had been heavily veiled when she registered.

... she had asked that the suite be undisturbed. He could give no description of her. She had come in at midnight. Had a lot of baggage, he remembered. But I got good eyes. Funny, the things you find around a hotel."

so the porter who brought in the grips had told him, from a large automobile.

All her meals had been sent up to her suite. She had not settled her bill at the desk, if he remembered rightly. He thought she had asked for a boy to bring the statement to her, and sent the money down with him.

"Could I talk to the boy?" Rodman asked.

"Certainly, sir." The clerk tapped a bell on the desk, and when a page appeared, sent him for one of the bell boys.

Yes, the boy recalled Miss Boisevain. She was a pretty lady, with golden hair, and deep blue eyes... very young, and very sad, he thought. She had tipped him very generously... but even if she hadn't, he would have done anything for her willingly, she was so sweet and kind. Once, when he had taken some ice water to her room, he thought he had heard a man's voice talking to her before he knocked on the door. He supposed she had visitors. But when he had entered, she was alone... and seemed sadder and more forlorn than ever.

The boy thought she must be sick, or something. But then she must have a lot of money, as she tipped well, and had a suite of three rooms... two bedrooms, a living room and two baths. She usually was wearing a negligee when he went to the room... one of those trailing, chiffon things.

"Did she leave Friday morning?" Rodman asked.

"Why yes, I believe she did. Only it was about noon. She went out for an hour or so. She had a large leather box carried down and placed in a taxi. She brought it back with her, too, I noticed."

"Then what?"

"She called for me shortly after she returned. Asked me to bring up some aspirin, as she had a headache."

Saturday morning, she had called him to bring up a bill, which he had done. She was ready to go with all her baggage packed when he arrived, and she gave him a large bill, telling him to keep the change.

She went in a big limousine... the boy said. He and a porter had carried the luggage out and placed it in the car. He thought she had told the driver to go to the docks.

Blair was certain that Miss Boisevain must be Janet... she should be no one else. But what had become of Maurice? The boy had heard a man's voice in the room, once... but when he entered, there was no one.

"About her meals... did she have meals for two sent up?" he asked the boy.

"I don't know, sir... you'll have to ask the waiters who carried the things to her room."

Hopkins-Ickes Fight Symptom of General Intro-Cabinet War

WASHINGTON — The Harold Ickes-Harry Hopkins death battle which you have read so much about in the papers is not a personal death battle at all.

In the first place, these two warriors are good friends—in fact, about the only two men in the New Deal who have not let personal convictions spoil a happy personal relationship.

Furthermore, the issue they are fighting over is not confined to them but extends right through the Cabinet. Hopkins and Ickes are the duellists picked for public exhibition. But what the public doesn't know is that other New Dealers secretly feel just as keenly about it.

The battle started back around Thanksgiving last year, when Roosevelt was at Warm Springs. At that time Ickes and Tugwell spent all of one afternoon arguing with him. What they both contended was:

Spending large amounts of money through a big building program, but spend it through private industry. This starts heavy industry moving, whereas leaf-raking CWA projects send no orders to the steel mills.

But the President was adamant. He claimed PWA—that is, heavy construction—was too slow. He wanted a lot of money spent immediately, wanted people taken off relief rolls, felt that the Government directly should supervise the spending.

Later the same argument was brought back to Washington. At that time it was a difference not between Ickes and Hopkins, but between the President and his chief advisers. Hopkins took no sides.

Marriner Eccles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, was hardest-hitting supporter of Ickes. He wanted to spend ten billions instead of four, but through private industry. Most of the Inner Circle favored the Ickes plan—except one man. He was Young Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury.

"If I'm going to raise this money," Morgenthau insisted, "I want to have something to say about spending it."

He threw his weight with the President. Thus the job of reviving CWA, cloaked under the high-sounding title of Works-Relief, began.

Hard on Harry

All this was not definitely decided until the time Congress appropriated the money. Criticism for this delay was heaped undeservedly on Hopkins' head, and he, smarting under the shower of vitriol, leaped at the job.

Harry made his plans through the simple process of long division. He had 3,500,000 unemployed to put to work, and he had $4,000,000,000 to spend.

No consideration was given to the fact that the manufacture of materials also put men to work—this type of employment did not though under private industry, make imposing publicity figures for the Administration.

So Hopkins began vetoing Ickes projects right and left. He turned down a PWA schoolhouse for Palmero, N. D., while neighboring areas were given a bird sanctuary and a golf links under his own WPA.

In Arkansas, Hopkins vetoed Ickes's PWA projects for sewage and waterworks for Hughes, Mt. View, Hartford, Bearden, Luxora and Dierks, instead gave them sewage systems under his own WPA. Thus the towns will have the pipes but no water to flush them.

"This was justified on the basis of using more men and less materials."

Frenzied Activity

But now Hopkins went in for activity just for activity's sake. His men began combing each state looking for projects, bidding against Ickes's PWA. To do this he amassed a staff of 25,000, the most elephantine and top-heavy in the Government.

And finally he began going in even for heavy projects, definitely of the PWA type, where material is more expensive than labor. Latest incursions in this field have been in Atlanta, Ga., and Washington, D. C., both in connection with sewer systems.

Theory of Baby's Death From Thymus Disputed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THERE USED to be a saying among old women in the neighborhood when a little baby died suddenly in its cradle, that "the cat sucked its breath."

Of course it was an evident superstition that many a medical lecturer has made fun of—the whole picture of the old crone and her cat, grinning, the wicked cat slinking away from the scene of its crime, leaving the lifeless little blue body which was a few hours ago so pink and healthy.

The "scientific" explanation that has been advanced for these occurrences has put the blame on the thymus gland. The occurrences themselves are fortunately very rare, but are sufficiently puzzling as to make any explanation difficult. Here is apparently a perfectly healthy infant who suddenly, in the very midst of this complete state of well being, passes away without a cry or struggle or evidence of any kind of accident.

Thymus Supposed to Swell

The thymus explanation attributes, as I say, the mechanism to the swelling of the thymus gland. This gland is located in the chest, lying on top of the windpipe. It is large in infancy, larger in childhood, and disappears almost entirely in the period of young adulthood. Its function is, therefore, thought to be in some way associated with growth.

The mechanism by which it causes death in these infants who are subject to so-called status thymolympaticus, has been supposed to be due to the sensitivity of the thymus to sudden changes in size. During one of these periods of swelling the thymus swells so that it obstructs the trachea, or windpipe, and strangulation results.

But the whole thing seemed as fantastic as the old cat sucking theory. The thymus gland is soft even when large, could hardly be supposed to squeeze the tough cartilaginous rings of the windpipe. And now comes an eminent Boston specialist in children's diseases to say that of all the cases he has investigated he has never found any that could be called a thymus death.

"The evidence does not support the conclusion that the thymus may be a cause of sudden death in infants and children."

In fact, the largest thymuses appear in the healthiest children.

ICKES-HOPKINS FEUD

MAYBE the president's suavity, as on other occasions, will be sufficient to sweeten the PWA and WPA acerbities of the Ickes-Hopkins row. In a way it's an amusing spectacle, suggestive of school-boy appeal to teacher, this departure of the irate secretary of the interior for Hyde Park with Hopkins on his heels.

That two individuals of such opposing temperaments would clash where both had equal authority is not surprising. Ickes is the phlegmatic, not-to-be-hurried type. Hopkins is nervous, emotional, active. They simply haven't hitched. The last straw to further pretense of harmony was swept aside when Hopkins, rejecting nearly 2,000 proposed WPA projects because the material cost was too high, intimated his decision was final.

The genesis of the row goes back to that failure of the president and his advisers to do a simple problem in division in mapping out the work relief program. Useful public projects, particularly those self liquidating, were to have preference and work on them was to be provided for all the 3,500,000 idle employables on relief. It's an old story now, the quick reversal of policy when the administration awakened to the fact that materials would absorb the greater part of the $4,000,000,000 fund.

Then it was the WPA was created and Hopkins sent scurrying to revive a sort of CWA program with less emphasis on the usefulness and self-liquidating factors. It had to be done to keep the president's promise to the 3,500,000. Whether the latter will benefit as much as they would had the original plan been adhered to is open to question—Hard old apparently shares the doubt on that score. Certainly the country will lose. But Hopkins has a job to do and, as he remarked when asked about Ickes's outbreak, he "is going to do it" willy nilly. That puts it straight up to the president.

Whatever the settlement reached at Hyde Park it is to be hoped it will include some step to end the division of authority. Until that is done there will continue to be friction and confusion.

"NOTHING TO HIDE"

PUBLIC and private martinet who think it is smart, and, in some unknown way, wise, to dodge the press when certain happenings arouse general interest should tear a page from the book of S. Ira Cooper, general manager of the steamship company that owns the grounded liner Dixie.

Far from evading reporters, Mr. Cooper took them into his confidence, presenting all available information with the utmost candor.

When someone remarked that this technique was unusual, he said: "We do not need attorneys to advise us what to give out to the public, as we have nothing to hide."

Such frankness and honesty may well be pondered by every politician, manager, superintendent and executive who occasionally faces the necessity of helping to sketch the daily pitcher of things as they are.

Bidding went: North, 1-Club; South, 1-No Trump; North, 2-Spades; South, 2-No Trumps; North, 3-No Trumps, ending bidding.

The 10 of hearts, at top of an intermediate sequence, or the 8 of hearts, as fourth-best card are equal proper opening leads. West led the 10, taking out dummy's lone Ace and making Mr. Baker realize that he had no easy task to perform. Of course clubs offered the only real hope of doing game.

Dummy's lowest club was led and won with the J. The 10 dropping at declarer's left might mean false carding or that East held as many as dummy. The K of clubs lost to East's Ace. West let go his lowest diamond.

Of course East led back his partner's hearts. East's 5 was covered with South's 7 and West's 8 took the trick. The J of spades was returned. On it went dummy's Q and East's Ace. The latter player led back his last heart. Declarer was in with his K. West's 4 was played, showing that East held no more hearts. West had shown out of clubs, but as yet nothing was known concerning the distribution of spades and diamonds, except the fact that West still held held only 4 of them. A few rounds of diamonds would settle the adverse division of those two suits.

Declarer led his 4 of diamonds. West played the 3. Dummy's 10 was finessed and East's 9 fell. To make certain that East held no more, another round of winning diamonds was led. East discarded the 5 of spades, leaving him only the 10-9 of that suit, and 3 clubs to the 9-8-5, and, fortunately for Mr. Baker, he knew just what those remaining clubs were, making all the difference between the observant, efficient player and the player who bumbles along, playing haphazard.

Dummy's last diamond was led, forcing another discard from East. Dummy was reduced to the lone K of spades and the Q-7-6 of clubs. Whichever way East discarded he could win only a single trick, unless declarer had forgotten just what East held. There was a chance that South did not remember just what was out in clubs, so East cast of his 9 of spades. Dummy's K of spades was led at the tenth trick, followed by the 6 of clubs, giving defenders their fourth and last trick, as East had to lead from his 9-5 of clubs, up to dummy's Q-7, just enabling South to fulfill his contract. It was nice work.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

CHAPTER 48

AFTER HE had all the information the Vrooman boy could give, Blair made out his personal check to his father and received the fifth diamond.

Father and son left the docks, and Blair wandered alone. He inquired at all the offices whether a girl of Janet's description had been seen. She apparently had not. No one had sailed under the name of Janet Lord from any of the lines.

Maurice Boisevain was equally unknown. Twenty-five ships carrying passengers had left since last Friday, some for the coast route, a few for the Orient and Australia, and the regular daily boats to Seattle. Blair gave it up, finally, no wiser than when he had come, except for the possession of another diamond. Upon reaching the hotel he phoned Boisevain, but there were no more answers there to his "B. R." advertisements.

He inquired at his own hotel for Miss Lord, but no one apparently had seen a girl answering her description.

It seemed useless to him, now, to return to Boisevain when he knew Janet had been in Vancouver. At least the diamond Sammy Vrooman had found indicated the trail led here. This he believed, was his only clue, and although a discouragingly slender one, he determined to follow it through.

He made a personal survey of all the automobile rental agencies. Janet had said in her note that she was going away in a car . . . that it was waiting even as she wrote to Nita. The car might possibly have come from Vancouver. But all efforts to trace the car ended in failure.

It seemed incredible to him that the two had dropped so completely from sight, considering that Nita had said that Maurice, if he were to be seen, was so terrible anyone would remember him. Blair tried to picture him, but could not. Nita had not given him even a hint of the man's appearance.

Time was passing so rapidly, yet he seemed to be getting nowhere. With each day that passed, Janet was getting farther and farther away from him, he felt.

After visiting the car agencies, he drove aimlessly back to the hotel, wondering what he should do next. Hire a detective to manage the thing for him? That might be best, after all . . . although he had leisure, he could handle the matter well enough himself if only he could get some clue to work on.

A maid was cleaning his room when he returned to the hotel. He dropped into an easy chair, more discouraged than exhausted.

"Funny things you find in hotel rooms," the maid, who proved to be a garrulous person, said, suddenly. She was pounding up his pillows with their fresh slips on. "Funny things. Once I found a pearl ring lying on the wash bowl of a room on my floor. An' nobody ever claimed it, would you believe? Then once last year, I found a sapphire bracelet under a pillow. But the woman came back after it. She gave me $5 for finding it. Always findin' things, I am. They think I'm lucky. I got a lucky floor, here. But I got good eyes. Funny, the things you find around a hotel."

"Yes?" Blair said, idly. The talkative woman annoyed him. He wanted to concentrate, to think. "An' just this mornin' I found a stone under the rug in the big suite down the hall. I was vacuumin' and my vacuum hit a bump—an' when I lifted the corner of the rug, what d'ye think I found? Maybe it's a diamond. You oughter know, sir."

The maid fished in her pocket and pulled out a glittering object and handed it to Blair.

Blair glanced dully at it. He had not half heard what the woman said. He suddenly sat up with a start.

"Where did you find this?" he demanded, excitedly. The stone was exactly like the ones he already had! "Under the rug in 708-10, when I was vacuumin', I told you, sir. I just been wonderin' whether it was a real diamond or just a bit of glass. Maybe you could tell me, sir?"

"I've been looking for it. See it just matches my others." He drew out his other five gems.

"Well, now, ain't that queer! Well, if it's yours you can have it." She handed him the diamond.

"I'm offering a reward . . . I've been paying ads in all the papers. Here's $50 for your trouble."

The maid's face was a mixture of joy and consternation. "Oh, sir, that's too much . . . and I ain't even reported it at the desk yet . . . just found it this mornin'!"

"Take it, and say nothing about finding it. Now, I want to ask you some questions."

Reluctantly the woman sat down, holding the $50 bill tightly in her hand.

"Can you take me to the room where you found this?"

"A man and his wife have it, now."

"When did they come?"

"I don't know exactly, sir . . . but I think they've been there for several days. It was empty a few days before that."

"Who occupied it before?"

"I'm sure I don't know . . . who ever did, didn't want the suite touched, for I had orders from the housekeeper not to go in."

"You're sure you didn't see the people who occupied the room . . . I mean the ones before the couple now in there?"

"I didn't see 'em, sir."

"All right, that's all I want to know."

Blair hurried from the room to see the desk clerk. The present occupants of the suite were an elderly man and his wife from Winnipeg. They had been there three days. Before that, the suite had been empty for several days. It had been occupied for two nights, last Thursday and Friday, by a lady . . . a Miss Marie Boisevain from Seattle.

"What did the girl look like?"

The clerk remembered nothing about her, except that she had been heavily veiled when she registered . . . she had asked that the suite be undisturbed. He could give no description of her. She had come in at midnight. Had a lot of baggage, he remembered. It had been unloaded, so the porter who brought in the grips had told him, from a large automobile.

All her meals had been sent up to her suite. She had not settled her bill at the desk, if he remembered rightly. He thought she had asked for a key to bring the statement to her and sent the money down with him.

"Could I talk to the boy?" Rodman asked.

"Certainly, sir." The clerk tapped a bell on the desk, and when a page appeared, sent him for one of the bell boys.

Yes, the boy recalled Miss Boisevain. She was a pretty lady, with golden hair, and deep blue eyes . . . very young, and very sad, he thought. She had tipped him very generously . . . but even if she hadn't, he would have done anything for her willingly, she was so sweet and kind.

Once, when he had taken some ice water to her room, he thought he had heard a man's voice talking to her before he knocked on the door. He supposed she had visitors. But when he had entered, she was alone . . . and seemed sadder and more forlorn than ever.

The boy thought she must be sick, or something. But then she must have a lot of money, as she tipped well, and had a suite of three rooms . . . two bedrooms, a living room and two baths. She usually was wearing a negligee when he went to the room . . . one of those trailing, chiffon things.

"Did she leave Friday morning?" Rodman asked.

"Why yes, I believe she did. Only it was about noon. She went out for an hour or so. She had a large leather box carried down and placed in a taxi. She brought it back with her, too, I noticed."

"What was it?"

"She called for me shortly after she returned. Asked me to bring up some aspirin, as she had a headache."

Saturday morning, she had called him to bring up her bill, which he had done. She was ready to go with all her baggage packed when he arrived, and she gave him a large bill, telling him to keep the change.

She went in a big limousine . . . the boy said. And a porter had carried the luggage out and placed it in the car. He thought she had told the driver to go to the docks.

Blair was certain that Miss Boisevain must be Janet . . . she should be no one else. But what had become of Maurice? The boy had heard a man's voice in the room, once . . . but when he entered, there was no one.

"About her meals . . . did she have meals for two sent up?" he asked the boy.

"I don't know, sir . . . you'll have to ask the waiters who carried the things to her room."

Hopkins-Ickes Fight

Symptom of General

Intro-Cabinet War

WASHINGTON — The Harold Ickes-Harry Hopkins death battle which you have read so much about in the papers is not a personal death battle at all.

In the first place, these two warriors are good friends—in fact, about the only two men in the New Deal who have not let personal convictions spoil a happy personal relationship.

Furthermore, the issue they are fighting over is not confined to them but extends right through the Cabinet. Hopkins and Ickes are the duelists picked for public exhibition. But what the public doesn't know is that other New Dealers secretly feel just as keenly about it.

The battle started back around Thanksgiving last year, when Roosevelt was at Warm Springs. At that time Ickes and Twiggell spent all of one afternoon arguing with him. What they both contended was:

Spend large amounts of money through a big building program, but spend it through private industry. This starts heavy industry moving, whereas leaf-raking CWA projects send no orders to the steel mills.

But the President was adamant. He claimed PWA—that is, heavy construction—was too slow. He wanted a lot of money spent immediately, wanted people taken off relief rolls, felt that the Government directly should supervise the spending.

Later the same argument was brought back to Washington. At that time it was a difference not between Ickes and Hopkins, but between the President and his chief advisers. Hopkins took no sides.

Marriner Eccles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, was hardest-hitting supporter of Ickes. He wanted to spend ten billions instead of four—but through private industry. Most of the Inner Circle favored the Ickes plan—except one man. He was Young Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury.

"If I'm going to raise this money," Morgenthau insisted, "I want to have something to say about spending it."

He threw his weight with the President. Thus the job of reviving CWA, cloaked under the high-sounding title of Works-Relief, began.

Hard on Harry

All this was not definitely decided until the time Congress appropriated the money. Criticism for this delay was heaped undeservedly on Hopkins' head, and he, smarting under the shower of vitriol, leaped at the job.

Harry made his plans through the simple process of long division. He had 3,500,000 unemployed to put to work, and he had $4,000,000,000 to spend.

TED'S NEW SHOW CROWDS CLIFTONA

"Here Comes the Band" Proves Entertaining; Stockwell's Singing Lauded.

Ted Lewis came back to town Sunday on the screen of the Cliftona theatre and packed them in all afternoon and evening. The first show in the afternoon saw a capacity house and every show after that was similarly attended.

The picture was "Here Comes the Band" and other featured persons were Harry Stockwell, Virginia Bruce, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Spanky McFarland and a host of others.

The show will be repeated Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Ted, looking a little thinner than usual, but still the same old Ted, had much to do in this show. He repeated "When My Baby Smiles at Me", "The Peanut Vendor", and several other songs which have helped keep him in the spotlight of American entertainment for many years. The curtain was dropped at the most appropriate time just as Ted said "Is Everybody Happy?"

While comedy is the feature of the picture, the singing of young Stockwell is outstanding. It is his first major effort but will not be his last. Healy and Pendleton carry the comic roles in a fine way while Virginia Bruce provides the love interest.

Ted directs a military band and puts on a clever floor show during the reunion of his army regiment.

The Cliftona management has arranged a fine program of accompanying features including a Hal Roach amateur contest that almost rolls them in the aisle.

He repeated "When My Baby Smiles at Me," "The Peanut Vendor," and several other songs which have helped keep him in the spotlight of American entertainment for many years. The curtain was dropped at the most appropriate time just as Ted said "Is Everybody Happy?"

While comedy is the feature of the picture, the singing of young Stockwell is outstanding. It is his first major effort but will not be his last. Healy and Pendleton carry the comic roles in a fine way while Virginia Bruce provides the love interest.

Ted directs a military band and puts on a clever floor show during the reunion of his army regiment.

The Cliftona management has arranged a fine program of accompanying features including a Hal Roach amateur contest that almost rolls them in the aisle.

GIANTS MEET LEADING CUBS; DEFEAT DIZZY

Terry's Team Showing Stretch Fight; Chicago Now Leading By Two

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—The gallant fight Bill Terry's Giants are staging out there in the west has New York literally by the ears? If plain, old fashioned rooting and well wishing means anything the Giants are going to romp through that crucial series with the Cubs, opening in Chicago today, with the ease of a cannon ball whizzing through a paper hoop.

There's one thing about New Yorkers, they recognize courage and class, and the Giants seemingly have both in abundance. Only a game team could have swept over the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals in three games after dropping the first contest of the series to the mighty Dizzy Dean. In defeating the Cards on Saturday and Sunday the Giants may well have written finis to the St. Louisans pennant hopes.

Winning by a score of 7 to 3 in the finale yesterday, the Giants were far and away the better club. Undismayed by the reappearance of Dizzy Dean in a starting role, the Giants rushed the Cardinals from the opening minute of play and pinned the great one's ears back. Before the Cards scored in the sixth on Medwick's homer, the Giants had piled up a five run lead. Then in the seventh they added two more to their total, just for luck.

In the five innings he pitched, Dizzy was touched for no less than 12 safe smacks, two of them being made by his mound rival, Carl Hubbell. Incidentally Hubbell registered his 32nd success of the season.

In Chicago, the hapless Brooklyn Dodgers were the victims again as the first-place Cubs, moving like meteor's won their twelfth straight. The Cubs won by a score of 6 to 3, being considerably aided by four Dodger errors.

The Cubs now lead the Cardinals by two and a half games and the Giants by three and a half.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Hurrah!!! Philistine

Give Star Philistine, owned by H. C. Cramer, A. & P. store manager, a real hand—That horse, which is the best of the best, won the free-for-all handicap for a $360 purse at the Clinton-co fair last Friday although he threw a shoe and fell in the first heat—Star Philistine tumbled coming out of the first turn—Bob Plaxico, the driver, narrowly escaped injury and so did the horse, but the Star finished fifth then won the next two heats in 2:09 and 2:09 1/2.

Some Strong, Some Not

Tiger grid opponents turned in various performances in last week's opener—Nothing has been heard from Groveport, Friday's foe; Holy Rosary with a veteran backfield had an easy time with Gahanna Lincoln; Grandview forced South but lost 6-0; Bexley had a tough time beating Columbus St. Mary's, 6-0; Westerville played Central to a 6-6 deadlock; nothing has been heard from Delaware; Marysville lost to Mt. Vernon, 0-20; nothing is known of London, and Chillicothe did not see action ***

Plenty Run; No Tackle

From Chillicothe comes word that the Vernia-coached backfield is plenty sweet but the line a problem—in a regular game with the reserves Friday, the varsity won 33-0—The starting backfield was Strausbaugh at quarter, Ludwig at full and Thompson and Jones at the halves—The Ross-co team is last on the Tiger schedule ***

Cripples Are Ready

With all his banged up aspirants expected back at practice this evening Coach Jack Landrum was ready to resume earnest work for the Groveport tilt—John Griffith and Dick Melton, expected to play fullback and end, respectively, are ready for heavy work—Griffith has been out a week with a bruised shoulder and Melson has been on the sidelines for several days with an ankle sprain—A boy who will get plenty of attention this week is Russ Weaver, 182-pounder from Wayne-twp, who has been promised transportation home after every practice by the coach if he makes good ***

RED BIRDS CLOSE SEASON WITH PAIR

COLUMBUS, Sept. 16—One of the dizziest American association pennant races in years was at a close today with Minneapolis the 1935 title holders, Indianapolis in second place, and Columbus and Kansas City deadlocked for third. The Kaws and Red Birds both won double-headers to finish the season with 84 wins and 70 losses for a .545 percentage.

Kansas City dropped Minneapolis, 1 to 0 and 14 to 2, while the Birds beat Toledo, 6 to 5 and 6 to 4.

Indianapolis split with Louisville in a twin bill, the Indians taking the opener, 7 to 3, while the Colonels came back with a 9 to 1 victory.

St. Paul also divided a twin bill with Milwaukee, the Saints capturing the first, 4 to 3, while the Brewers romped in the second, 6 to 1.

HUNTINGTON VICTORIOUS

DAYTON, Sept. 16—The Mid-Atlantic baseball championship today rested with the Huntington Red Birds who won the league playoff by defeating Dayton, 7 to 6, in the sixth game of the series. The win gave the Flocks its fourth victory against the Ducks.

TIGERS FACE HARD DRILLS FOR OPENER

New Offensive Plans to Be Given; New Jerseys, Painted Headguards to Help

Intensive drills with offense to be stressed are on the schedule for every afternoon this week with Coach Jack Landrum of the high school driving his boys hard in preparation for the Groveport opener on Friday.

When the last practice was held Friday afternoon, Landrum had given his boys eight or 10 plays and more were expected to be studied early this week.

The Red and Black athletes, most of them small in size but willing to the nth degree of the word, will be decked out in nice new jerseys, providing the shipment arrives in time, when they take the field Friday. The jerseys are crimson with big white letters on the back. Faculty Manager E. E. Reger has ordered 24 jerseys. All the headgears are being painted white this week to help aid to the appearance of the squad.

The Red and Black outfit will look mighty nice when it romps out on the field, and believe it or not, it isn't going to look so bad in play. The team is made up of inexperienced youths but all are trying and taking to Landrum's system in pretty nice fashion.

We'll wager the biggest crowd in several years will see the game.

60 INJURED IN MAX BAER CAMP

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 16—Sixty persons were injured at Max Baer's training camp here yesterday when a stand holding more than 400 boxing fans collapsed while the former champion was in the ring with one of his sparring partners. The 25-year stand caved in during the crowd rose as one man during a particularly vicious exchange between the fighters. State troopers gave instant assistance to the victims, none of whom suffered serious injury.

DR. STEWART WINS MASHIE

Defeats Johnny Mader in Splendid Playoff; Mader Cages Eagle on No. 3

Dr. C. G. Stewart won the Ryder Memorial mashie at the Pickaway Country club Sunday in a play-off with Johnny Mader, two up and one to go.

Although Mader started off with 4-3-2 on his second round, Dr. Stewart held too great an advantage on the first nine. Mader's eagle came on No. 3 when he dropped his nibble approach into the cup.

Dr. Stewart was benefitted by a handicap and played very creditable golf to win the match. He and Mader tied in a tournament for the mashie a week ago, the trophy play being postponed from July 4 because of inclement weather.

Winners in the mixed Load and Lifter tournament Sunday were: Lent Hanson and Mrs. Dewey Black over Mr. Black and Mrs. Donnelly, 2 up; John Bragg and Mrs. Hanson over Mr. Donnelly and Mrs. Bragg, 5 up; Emil Hrobon and Johnny Mader over Mr. and Mrs. Ned Groom, 2 up with the Grooms having a 24-stroke handicap.

Things are moving fast at the Pickaway Country club with the big barbecue planned for Wednesday.

DETROIT ROOKIE OUSTS FEDERALS

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 16—The Springfield Kiblers baseball nine today possessed the state amateur title following its 6 to 4 victory over the Columbus Federal Glass in the tournament finals here.

After trailing going into the eighth inning, the local club came to life and scored all of its runs in the eighth at the expense of three Columbus pitchers.

Ray Payne, 20-year-old right hander recently signed by the Detroit Tigers, allowed the Federals eight hits and managed to keep out of trouble except for the sixth and seventh innings when Columbus scored two runs each in those frames.

ILLINOIS GIVEN CHANCE TO BEAT OHIO

Copyright, 1935 by Central Press
By CLARK SMOUGHNESSY
Coach University of Chicago
CHICAGO, Sept. 16—It is pretty generally considered that the two strongest teams in the Western conference the coming fall will be Ohio State and Minnesota. Both teams were exceptionally powerful last year, and, in the case of Ohio State particularly, practically all of last year's players are returning. Also there is no important change in the coaching staffs at these two institutions.

Illinois Coming Up
Some of the wise ones think that Illinois has a great team in the offing. This is probably true and perhaps the Ohio State-Illinois game will have a lot of bearing on the championship. Illinois defeated Ohio State last year, and will have the coming year, exactly the type of a team to handle the Ohio State type of offense.

Illinois is very fast, choosing speed rather than size, when selecting the personnel of the team. Ohio State's offense, consisting largely of forward and lateral passes, will run up big scores against big lumbering teams but always will have difficulty with such outfits as the alert, smart, fast Illinois aggregation.

To overlook Purdue is always foolish. Noble Kizer has a strong squad this fall as in past years. Purvis and Carter were grand backs—there was no better pair in the country—but there are new ball carriers to take the places of these two stars and a wealth of big strong linemen to clear the way. What is true of Purdue is true of Indiana. The state of Indiana has not yet recovered from the effects of last year's Purdue-Indiana game that Bo McMillin's team won decisively, scoring a great upset.

Wisconsin Dark Horse
Dr. Spears' Wisconsin team is another dark horse that might surprise everybody. It is known that this team is the heaviest in the conference, and if a couple of fast ball carriers turn up to go with that Wisconsin line, all the Badger opponents will be in for tough afternoons this fall.

Northwestern's chances are quite uncertain. Lynn Waldorf, their coach, is well known for his ability to get the most out of any situation. The material is undoubtedly pretty good—but a new coach in a conference new to him, even though the material is likely to be at least average, should not be expected to turn out a championship team, his first year at least. If he did, he most certainly would be a miracle man.

RED BIRDS CLOSE SEASON WITH PAIR

COLUMBUS, Sept. 16.—One of the dizziest American association pennant races in years was at a close today with Minneapolis in the 1935 title holders, Indianapolis in second place, and Columbus and Kansas City deadlocked for third. The Kaws and Red Birds both won double-headers to finish the season with 84 wins and 70 losses for a .545 percentage.

Kansas City dropped Minneapolis, 1 to 0 and 14 to 2, while the Birds beat Toledo, 6 to 5 and 6 to 4.

Indianapolis split with Louisville in a twin bill, the Indians taking the opener, 7 to 3, while the Colonels came back with a 9 to 1 victory.

St. Paul also divided a twin bill with Milwaukee, the Saints capturing the first, 4 to 3, while the Brewers romped in the second, 6 to 1.

HUNTINGTON VICTORIOUS

DAYTON, Sept. 16.—The Mid-Atlantic baseball championship today rested with the Huntington Red Birds who won the league playoff by defeating Dayton, 7 to 6, in the sixth game of the series. The win gave the Flock its fourth victory against the Ducks.

TIGERS FACE HARD DRILLS FOR OPENER

New Offensive Plans to Be Given; New Jerseys, Painted Headguards to Help

Intensive drills with offense to be stressed are on the schedule for every afternoon this week with Coach Jack Landrum of the high school driving his boys hard in preparation for the Groveport opener on Friday.

When the last practice was held Friday afternoon, Landrum had given his boys eight or 10 plays and more were expected to be studied early this week.

The Red and Black athletes, most of them small in size but willing to the nth degree in the word, will be decked out in new jerseys, providing the shipment arrives in time, when they take the field Friday. The jerseys are crimson with big white letters on the back. Faculty Manager E. E. Reger has ordered 24 jerseys. All the headgear is being painted white this week to help add to the appearance of the squad.

The Red and Black outfit will look mighty nice when it romps out on the field, and believe it or not, it isn't going to look so bad in play. The team is made up of inexperienced youths but all are trying and taking to Landrum's system in pretty nice fashion.

We'll wager the biggest crowd in several years will see the game.

60 INJURED IN MAX BAER CAMP

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Sixty persons were injured at Max Baer's training camp here yesterday when a stand holding more than 400 boxing fans collapsed while the former champion was in the ring with one of his sparring partners. The 25-year-old stand caved in when the crowd rose as one man during a particularly vicious exchange between the fighters. State troopers gave instant assistance to the victims, none of whom suffered serious injury.

Ray Payne, 20-year-old right hander recently signed by the Detroit Tigers, allowed the Federals eight hits and managed to keep out of trouble except for the sixth and seventh innings when Columbus scored two runs each in those frames.

After trailing going into the eighth inning, the local club came to life and scored all of its runs in the eighth at the expense of three Columbus pitchers.

Ray Payne, 20-year-old right hander recently signed by the Detroit Tigers, allowed the Federals eight hits and managed to keep out of trouble except for the sixth and seventh innings when Columbus scored two runs each in those frames.

Dr. Spears' Wisconsin team is another dark horse that might surprise everybody. It is known that this team is the heaviest in the conference, and if a couple of fast ball carriers turn up to go with that Wisconsin line, all the Badger opponents will be in for tough afternoons this fall.

Northwestern's chances are quite uncertain. Lynn Waldorf, their coach, is well known for his ability to get the most out of any situation. The material is undoubtedly pretty good—but a new coach in a conference new to him, even though the material is likely to be at least average, should not be expected to turn out a championship team, his first year at least. If he did, he most certainly would be a miracle man.

Roses and Title

Patricia Henry

Winner of the girls' national singles championship at Philadelphia, youthful Patricia (Pat) Henry of Los Angeles, holds the rose-filled cup awarded after her victory over Elena Ciccone of Boston in the final match, in straight sets.

DR. STEWART WINS MASHIE

Defeats Johnny Mader in Splendid Playoff; Mader Cages Eagle on No. 3

Dr. C. G. Stewart won the Ryder Memorial mashie at the Pickaway Country club Sunday in a play-off with Johnny Mader, two up and one to go.

Although Mader started off with 4-3-2 on his second round, Dr. Stewart held too great an advantage on the first nine. Mader's eagle came on No. 3 when he dropped his niblic approach into the cup.

Dr. Stewart was benefitted by a handicap and played very creditable golf to win the match. He and Mader tied in a tournament for the mashie a week ago, the trophy play being postponed from July 4 because of inclement weather.

Winners in the mixed Load and Lifter tournament Sunday were: Lent Hanson and Mrs. Dewey Black over Mr. Black and Mrs. Donnelly, 2 up; John Bragg and Mrs. Hanson over Mr. Donnelly and Mrs. Bragg, 5 up; Emil Hrobon and Johnny Mader over Mr. and Mrs. Ned Groom, 2 up with the Grooms having a 24-stroke handicap.

Things are moving fast at the Pickaway Country club with the big barbecue planned for Wednesday.

DETROIT ROOKIE OUSTS FEDERALS

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 16.—The Springfield Kiblers baseball nine today possessed the state amateur title following its 6 to 4 victory over the Columbus Federal Glass in the tournament finals here.

After trailing going into the eighth inning, the local club came to life and scored all of its runs in the eighth at the expense of three Columbus pitchers.

Ray Payne, 20-year-old right hander recently signed by the Detroit Tigers, allowed the Federals eight hits and managed to keep out of trouble except for the sixth and seventh innings when Columbus scored two runs each in those frames.

PATTERN 5438

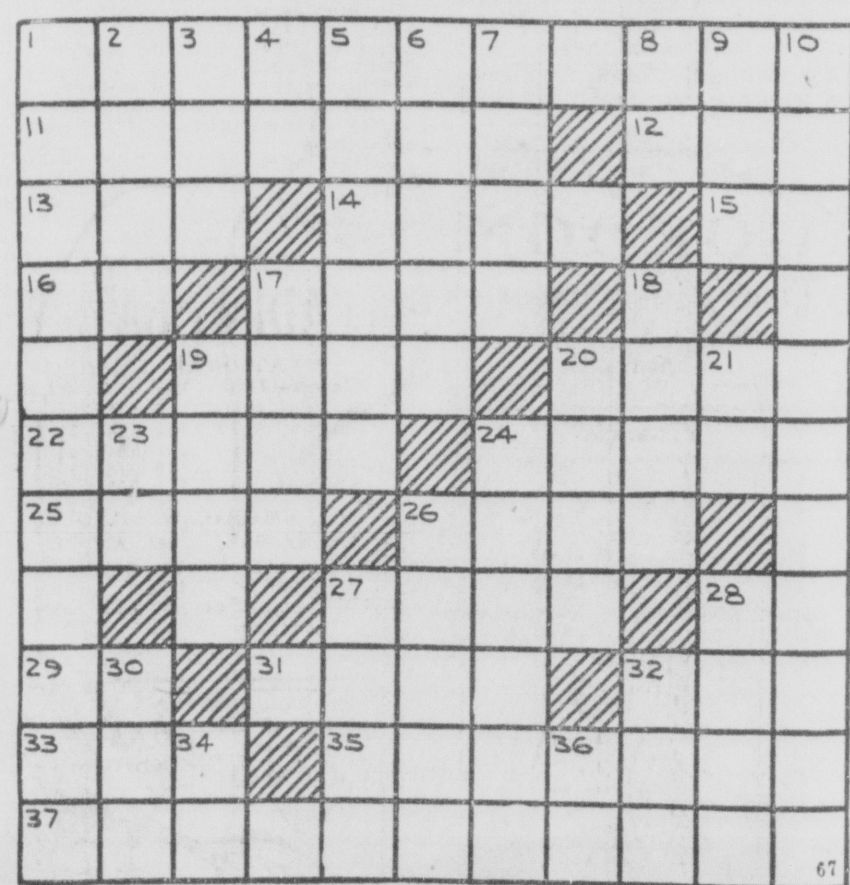

Rarely seen, but beautifully plumaged, these graceful flamingoes adorn a tropical setting, and an easily made wall-hanging as well. It's just the thing to fill in that awkward bare space over the bookcase or in the guest-room. You'll find it most interesting pick-up work, too—it works up so quickly, it's done before you know it. You may use either silk, wool, or cotton floss, and, of course, the more colorful you make it, the prettier it will be. As only such simple stitches as single, running and outline stitches are required, the veriest beginner will find it easy. And you needn't frame it—just line it and hang it up.

In pattern 5438 you will find a transfer pattern of a wall-hanging 15x20 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; color chart and key.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, Ohio.

SUICIDE VERDICT
SEEN IN HOEY CASE

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 16—Unless new evidence is uncovered, a coroner's jury this week will ring down the curtain on the tragic final scene in the career of glamorous Evelyn Hoey, beautiful, golden-haired screen, stage and radio star.

The jury, authorities today were agreed, will have no alternative but to declare the 25-year-old Broadway torch-singer a suicide.

On the surface, at least, there was but one week-end development. It came when Rogers, "black sheep" scion of Standard Oil millions and playboy friend of the dead girl, vanished from a fashionable mountain retreat at Wernersville where he and his aristocratic mother, Mrs. Benjamin Rogers had vainly sought seclusion.

dope, DeWolf pleaded guilty and was held under $1,000 bond.

Clarence Roberts of Amanda was fined $25 and costs by the mayor and committed to the county jail for reckless operation of his father's motor vehicle.

Harry Ratcliff was sent to the county jail to serve $25 and costs put against him in the mayor's court for intoxication and disorderly conduct. His arrest made his seventh trip to the mayor's court.

Common Pleas

Mrs. Mildred Karshner, administratrix de bonis non with the will annexed of the late William Tee-gardin, has brought action in common pleas court against Loretta Karns of Plain City, W. D. McDill of Whisler, and Isabel and Barbara Miranda of Columbus for $2,500 allegedly due the estate.

truck. Neither was hurt in the collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left their home in Portsmouth about 4 a. m. and were going to Mt. Sterling to visit their daughter, Mrs. Charles Clark, Mt. Sterling, R. F. D. In their car they had food supplies and toys for their grandchildren.

The wrecked car was taken to the Leach Motor Co. Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated the accident.

Two Treated For Injuries in Wreck

Paul Frazier, S. Pickaway-st, and Charles Ebenhaek, Williamsport, were treated Saturday night for injuries suffered when their auto struck a telephone pole on the Dawson pike north of Williamsport.

The injured were brought to Circleville by Marshal William Neff and Ed Jones, Williamsport.

Goodman's Auto
Hits Telephone Pole

Stanley Goodman, York-st, was treated by Dr. Charles Davis, New Holland, Saturday night for cuts on the face sustained when his auto struck a telephone pole near New Holland.

Goodman told officers lights of approaching cars blinded him. After being treated by Dr. Davis he was removed to his home in the Kirk ambulance.

The accident was reported at 10:20 p. m. Saturday.

night a week ago and pointed a 32-calibre Belgian automatic at Long's heart.

Other important witnesses summoned include ten members of the heavily armed bodyguard that has thrown a condon of protection around the senator's person for several years, but who failed when the crucial test of their services came.

These, all members of the state secret police, are; Murphy Roden, Jose Messina, Joe Bates, A. D. Coleman, George McQuiston, J. P. Wooley, John Kirsch, Louis Heard, Paul Voitar, and a man named Ratliff. None appeared at the inquest last Monday.

Other witnesses include acquaintances of the slain Dr. Weiss from whom District Attorney Odum hopes to establish the young physician's movements immediately prior to the shooting and during the latter part of July when Earl Christenberry, confidential secretary to Long, asserted Weiss attended a meeting in the DeSoto hotel in New Orleans in which Long's assassination assertedly was plotted.

BROWN ATTACKS
DAVEY PROGRAM

COLUMBUS, Sept. 16—Opposition to "any scheme to finance Governor Davey's institutional building program that creates a bonded indebtedness of millions of dollars in excess of the maximum fixed by the constitution," which is not first submitted to and approved by the voters of Ohio, was expressed today by Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester, head of the Republican ticket in 1934.

The governor's plan for providing the state's share of funds for the huge institutional building program contemplates the issuance of bonds by a corporation created by the legislature which meets in special session Wednesday.

Constitutional limitation on bonds which may be issued by the state without a popular vote, $750,000, was approached in financing the new state office building here, leaving no margin for further unvoted bonds until those are retired.

Brown strongly urged that any such bonds as the governor proposes to issue be submitted first to a vote of the people as they must be retired by levies against the taxpayers.

Lind, Cleveland regional board member, was expected here during the day to determine whether the case lies within the board's jurisdiction.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, whose home is here, left today for Washington after issuing a statement criticizing the company for importing armed guards "with death-dealing, murderous weapons."

Green also assailed the injunction obtained by the company restraining pickets.

"The company is not entitled to equitable relief," Green said, "because it does not go into court with clean hands. He who seeks equity must grant equity. He who seeks protection of the law must obey the law."

The labor chief then endorsed the strike as a fight against "injustice, reduction of wages and intolerable conditions of employment."

Green charged the company with violating the Wagner labor disputes act.

several terms as president of the Men's club of the church.

Of all the good works in which Mr. Groce took part, there is perhaps none in which he took greater pride than in the splendid accomplishments of the Circleville Benevolent Society, which he helped organize, and of which he was the first president.

Fraternally Active

He was a Mason, a member of the Circleville Athletic club, a member and past Exalted Ruler of the lodge of Elks, and an organizer and member of the Pickaway Country club.

Soon after the organization of the Rotary club he became a member, and served as a director and vice-president. A few years ago, in recognition of his services to the city, his fellow Rotarians made him an honorary member.

He was elected to the city council for two terms, and had long been a member of the library board, being president at the time of his death. Since January 14, 1896 he had been a director of the First National Bank.

He bore all of his honors modestly, all of his labors were performed uncomplainingly and unselfishly, and he had a rich reward in the consciousness that they had earned the confidence and respect of all who knew him.

In 1886 Mr. Groce married Miss Anne B. Smith of Columbus. He is survived by Mrs. Groce and three daughters, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett and Mrs. Clark Will of this city, and Mrs. Donald Parsons Smith of Toledo, as well as his three grandchildren, Miss Anne and Miss Ellen Bennett and Charles Groce Will.

Funeral arrangements in charge of the W. H. Albaugh Co. are not complete.

SUICIDE VERDICT SEEN IN HOEY CASE

WEST CHESTER, Pa. Sept. 16.—Unless new evidence is uncovered, a coroner's jury this week will ring down the curtain on the tragic final scene in the career of glamorous Evelyn Hoey, beautiful, golden-haired screen, stage and radio star.

The jury, authorities today were agreed, will have no alternative but to declare the 25-year-old Broadway torch-singer a suicide.

On the surface, at least, there was but one week-end development. It came when Rogers, "black sheep" scion of Standard Oil millions and playboy friend of the dead girl, vanished from a fashionable mountain retreat at Wernersville where he and his aristocratic mother, Mrs. Benjamin Rogers had vainly sought seclusion.

dope, DeWolf pleaded guilty and was held under $1,000 bond.
